

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

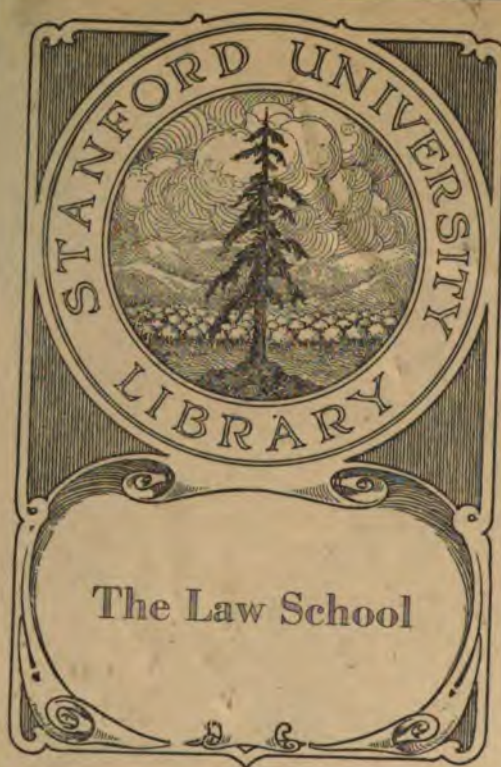

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

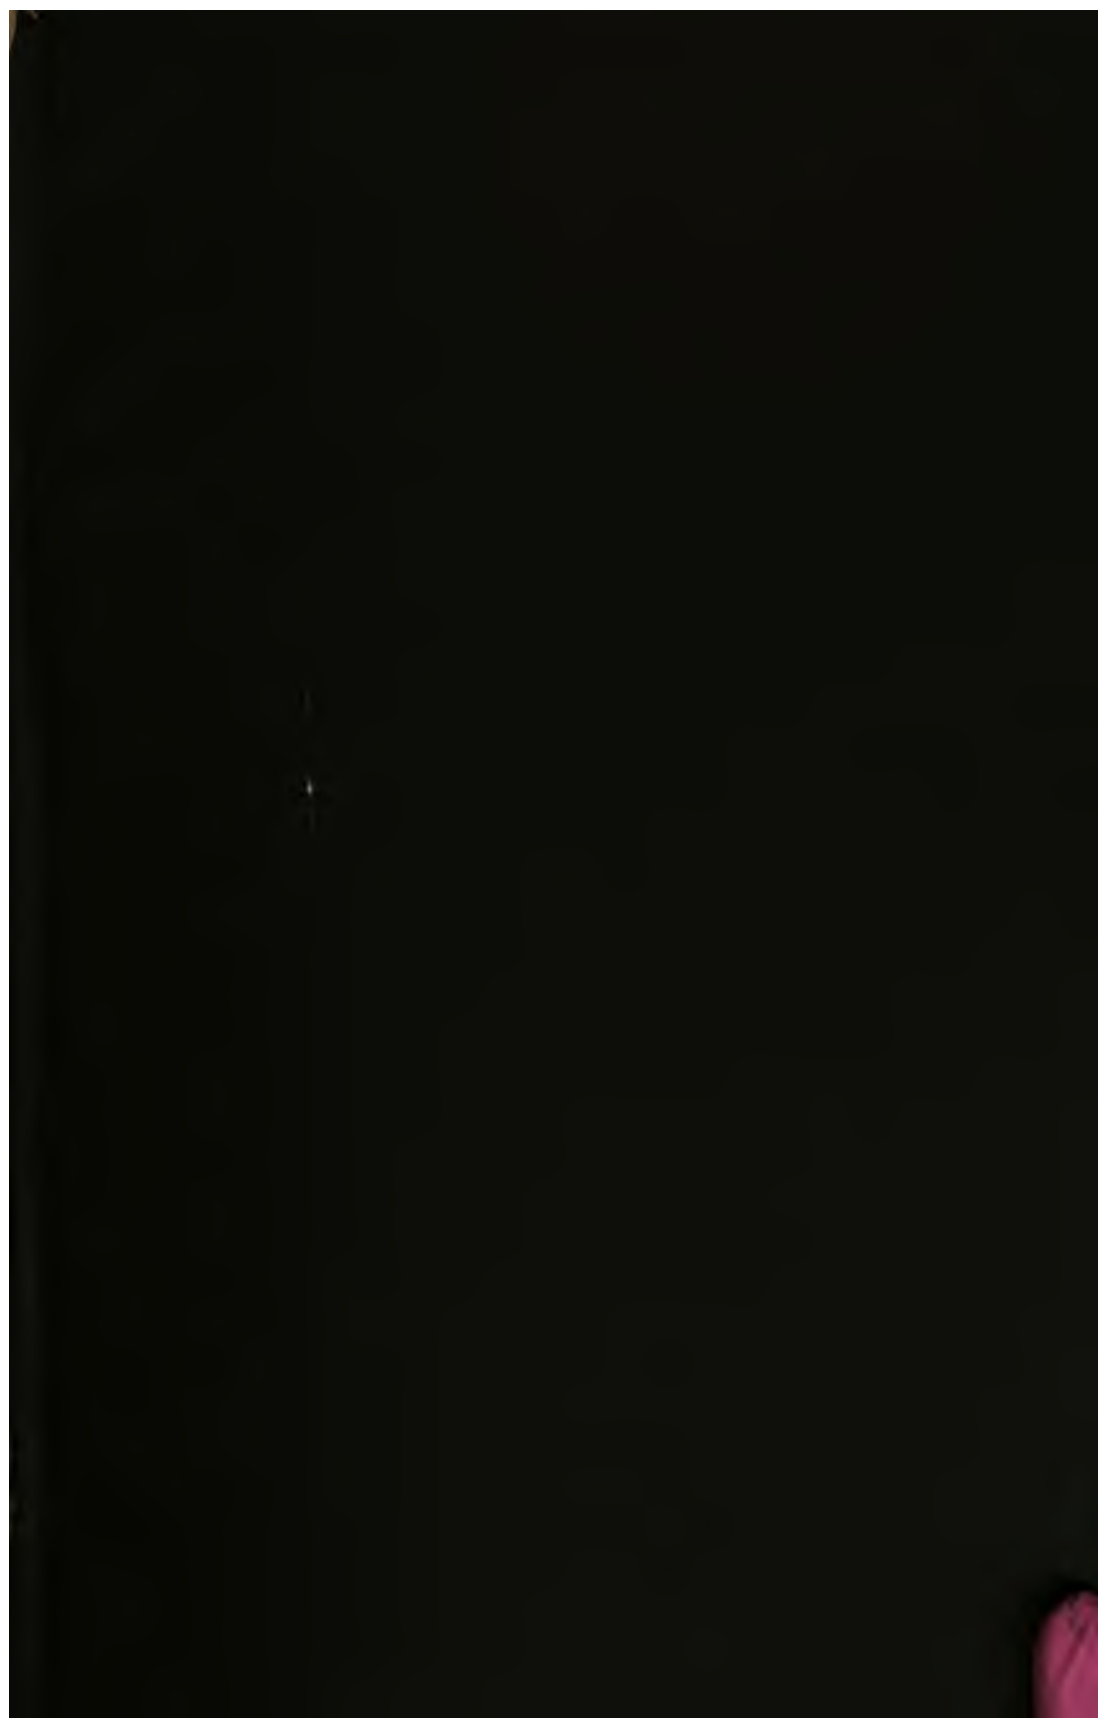

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTORY NOTICE.

THE Volume has already swelled to such proportions that the Editor is forcibly warned to restrict any kind of Introductory remarks within the straitest limits.

As to the contents of the present Volume, it will be seen that an abstract (with occasional copy of parts of special interest) of the Book of Bridge Accounts from F. 7^b is given; that all the essential part of the newly-discovered book of Recusants (1611-1613) is transcribed; and that the Books of MINUTES and ORDERS from the beginning of 1621 to January 1634 have been gone through, entry by entry, and the result noted in the present pages, special prominence being given to the various details connected with Recusancy. On this subject it will be found that a very large amount of additional and diversified information is furnished, and an endeavour has been made, in the compilation of the Index, to render it fully available.

As regards times-prices, indications of the Open-field System of Agriculture, the condition—perhaps one might say, the co-ordinate condition—of the Highways, the progress of Bridge-building or repair, the social* aspects of the time and the district, the least that can be said is that the present volume is not behind its predecessors in general and diversified interest.

One entry may seem to claim more specific notice, and that is the entry touching the sole case of witchcraft occurring during the period of thirteen years embraced by the Minutes dealt with in the following pages. However the fact is to be accounted for, it is quite evident that proceedings against witches were, up to 1634, very rare in the North Riding. The precise way in which the presentment in this one instance (p. 177) is given, and the deliberate details of the sentence given among the Orders (p. 181), preclude the idea that other cases may have occurred, and the details have been suppressed. Whether future volumes may produce a greater number of witch cases remains to be seen—1646 is the earliest date for such cases in Depositions from York Castle—but up to the date at present reached there is no reason for supposing that the witch-scare had greatly affected any part of North Yorkshire.

* Touching the matter noticed Vol. II. p. xiv., it may not be superfluous to call attention to the similar cases occurring in the present volume, as, for instance, a disorderly public-house kept by a clergyman, another public-house continuing to be held by the deceased parson's widow, the vicar of a parish twice charged with extortion, a gentleman acting as special bailiff, and exacting extortionate charges, etc.

APPENDIX.

"RANDLE-BALK, RENDLE-BALK. A cross-beam in the chimney, on which are hung the pot-hooks."—Clevel. Glossary.

"CROOKS. The iron hooks on which gates, doors, &c., are hung and swung."—Ib.

IMBROTHERER.—No doubt a form of embroiderer. Under Broider, Skeat says :—"The olden spelling of broider is broder; thus we find 'a spoyle of dyverse colours with brodered workes' in the Bible of 1551, Judges v. 30." The transition in North Yorkshire speech from broder, imbroder, to brother, imbrother, hardly needs comment.

[B. 9^b.] Mainly a repetition of the entry just given, HESTHOLME being the spelling here, and Alvaredus† Uvedale mentioned as present

* On comparison of the sums here set down with those for Morton Bridge just above (p. 1), where the total charge is just half the present charge, it will be seen that, while the ratio is exactly maintained as regards the Richm^{re}. Wap^{es}., there is noteworthy disproportion among the charges on the same Wap^{es}. in the other Division.

† This Latinized form of the name which has frequently occurred on previous pages as Averie, and on p. 119, Vol. II., as Alverius, seems to justify, if not to call for, the insertion of a further note, "The English," says Miss Yonge (Chr. Names, ii. 348), "loved to continue his (the great Alfred's) name, but it was Latinized as Aluredus, and thus Alured is the form in which it is borne by many persons recorded in Domesday, and is still kept up and regarded as a separate name, though Alfred has been within the last century resumed in England." Of course it becomes a question whether our present Alverius (See note in loco citato), Averie, and Alvaredus are merely due to the form Aluredus so noticed by Miss Yonge, or may possibly spring from, partly at least, quite another stock. And in this connection it is at least open to remark that Ferguson (Teut. Name-System, p. 135), quotes in conjunction with with the other Justices just named. Below the list of Wap^{es}. and their charges is written—the Engl. names Alvary, Alberi, Elvery, Aubery, the Old Germ. eighth century forms Alfheri, Albheri;—the prefix being the same as in Alfred (Ælf-ræd), and the suffix the very usual hari, warrior. It is clear that Miss Yonge is unacquainted with Averie or Alvary as a Christian name, and for my own part I am disposed to look on Averie with its Latinized counterpart of Alvaredus as entirely unconnected with Alfred or its old Latin form or forms.

[Bⁱ. 10^b.] After our hartie comendations we require yow to make particuler rates and estreates of the severall Wap^{es}. of the N. And thus we cease, committing yow to the Almightye, from the Sessions at Bedall, the fowerth of Oct^r. 1580.

* The variations in these rates as compared with most of those which have gone before are such as to show that there could hardly have been any definite or duly accredited proportion in use.

[B^t. 26.] According to your Worshippes precept we have by the advise of our skilfull workemen viewed GRETAY Bridge, which we have found in very great decaie; for that both the pillars are undermined * with the water, the one undermined thre yardes and the other two yardes under the brandreth,† besides other great dacayes [sic] of piling. And the levell fortie yardes of the one end, and thre score of the other, and the most part of the same must be raised six

* A very common form still, in this district. Note the Pr. Pm. "UNDERMYNDYN, idem quod underdehyn. Suffodio."

† This is rather an obscure word. It is apparently clear that the pillars rest on the 'brandreth,' which is the part that is actually undermined by the action of the water, and this "underminding of the brandreth" is coupled with "other great decay of the piling." The explanation consistent with all this seems to be that the 'brandreth' was some sort of a platform raised in the bed of the stream on which the pillars of the bridge were supported, and that it, in some form or other, depended on piling. Piles driven in and bonded together by cross beams or ties, and with the interstices filled in, with whatever material, would form such a platform, and one sufficiently stable for the purpose, such foundations being, it would appear, actually in use in certain cases in the construction of bridges at the present day. And, what is perhaps more to our purpose, such a structure of piles and cross-ties involves the idea which 'brandreth' had by usage come to imply; for Jamieson gives BRANDERIS with the meaning 'Trestles,' with an instance of usage, and the note—"Apparently, frames of wood for supporting the stand burdis or tables; so denominated from their supposed resemblance to a gridiron." To the above I would only add the following extracts, the one from Nicholson's Practical Builder, and the other from Pennant's London:—"Till of late years the foundation of bridges was erected in the following manner. Piles were driven into the bottom of the river, in the site of the intended pier, and then cut off a little below low-water mark, the interstices being filled with stone and strong cement: on these piles a grating of timber was laid, boarded with thick boarding, and thus was formed the floor for the intended pier." "This great work (London Bridge, 1176) was founded on enormous piles, driven as closely as possible together; on their tops were laid long planks ten inches thick, strongly bolted; and on them was placed the base of the pier, the lowermost stones of which were bedded in pitch, to prevent the water from damaging the work: round all were the piles which are called the sterlings, designed for the preservation of the foundation piles." Here we have, almost beyond doubt, the 'brandreth' and the exterior 'piling' brought together, and in such a way as to leave the essential nature of each not altogether uncertain.

or seaven quarters high, for that the raising of the same will make it levell with the traine * of the bridge in most partes : soe that there must be a new battlement. So that to our judgments, and by the advise of our workemen, the charges of the same will amount to £200. And, if speedy remedie be not had in the same, we cannott se but the whole bridge is like to go to utter ruine and decay by reason of the undermining of the same. And thus we comitt yow to God.

* A 'train' is usually "any thing drawn,—drawn out in length, or in succession, or consecutiveness." Here the idea is clearly rather that of direction than of drawing, or drawing or setting forth at length. The middle part of the bridge was so much above the approaches thereto that the latter must be raised some four or five feet to bring them, more or less nearly, into the same line or plane with it. So that in the word thus used we appear to have the same idea as when it is used as a verb, in the phrase, namely, to "train a gun upon" any given object. No instance of usage or meaning like the present is given in any of the dictionaries consulted by the Editor. It is perhaps worth passing notice that the word "lead" is still in continual use, in much the same sense, in this district; as in the phrases "a straight lead," "this part (of a line, road, &c.) is in the same lead with that."

† Probably meant for Bowyer or Bower. No such name has hitherto appeared among those of the Justices.

Charge of £60 for the repair of WENSLEY bridge. The H. Const^s. Coll^{rs}. for Topcliffe bridge.

The acc^t. of Will. Rasinge, gentⁿ., &c. (as above, pp. 19, 20), Surv^r. for Malton and How bridges, this 8th Jan^{re}., 32 Eliz., 1589. Amount ass^d. on Richm^{re}. and the Wap^{re}. in the other Division :—£48. 18. 10. received ; whereof paid and laid out as followeth :—Imprimis to Rich. Iveson, the maister maison, for amending the stone worke in Malton bridge, £18.

Item for fleakes* and wood laid over the water for passengers, for the time that the bridge was in repairinge 8s.

Item for wood for standers,† railles, and for workmanship of the same 13s. 4d.

Summe, £19. 1. 4.

[B¹. 38.] How bridge (Surveyor's Account).

Imprimis, paid to Lionell Foster for workmanship of the said bridge £11. 10.

Item paid for timber for makinge fower paire of jewells,‡ and one odd jewell, for 33 sommers§ and 30 planckes £18. 19.

* "FLAKES, FLEAKS. Hurdles ; properly such as are composed of wattled-work, or sticks interwoven together."—Clevel. Gloss.

† A 'standard,' or 'standerd,' is an upright bar or post, to which the rails would be nailed. The difference between a 'standard' and a 'stoup' may be taken to be that the latter is fixed in the earth, the former affixed by nails to some frame or such-like, and not necessarily even in contact with the earth : just what, in short, the hand-railing of a wooden or temporary bridge would be.

‡ Halliwell gives "JOWEL. The space between the piers of a bridge," which, like some other of his explanations or definitions, is very incomplete and unsatisfactory. Charlton (Hist. of Whitby, p. 342) uses the word in connection with Whitby bridge as constructed in 1766. He says the new bridge was "built on a plan somewhat different from the old one ; for, instead of jewels, stone pillars were now erected, on which timber was laid, framed and put together in a manner curious and artful enough." The description of the old bridge (p. 313) is—"A part in the middle thereof was framed, which being drawn up with ropes, blocks, and pulleys, was to admit such vessels," &c. The 'jewels' are not so much as mentioned or referred to here. They were replaced by stone pillars in the new bridge, and so would appear to have been of the nature of supports to the bridge, probably analogous to the supports of what are called 'Trestle-bridges.'

§ Jamieson gives "SUMMER. The principal beam in a wooden building. Barbour, xvii. 696," and in Pr. Pm. SOMYR CASTELL, is explained by Fala, which again is

Sume, £30. 9. [Will. Rasinge makes oath that so much has been paid as is here specified. Therefore he is so far acquitted.]

Attachment against Rob. Bower of the Marris against next Sessions. Mem. They say that Rob. Bower rec^d., for Whitby Strand, £3, for Birdforth, £2. 17. 6, for Pickering-lieth £2, and that he must duly account for the same; and in the mean time process against Rasinge to be stayed until Bower has given in his account.

Item the charges of the Surveyors as followeth:

Imprimis at Helmesley Sess ^{ns} . two severall times . . .	10s.
Item at Stokesley " " " " . . .	10s.
" at Thirske " sundrie times . . .	13s. 4d.
" at Northallerton Sess ^{ns} ., Rog. Bell, at Midsomer } last	4s.
" at Northallerton on Bartholomew day, metinge the } Constables there for receipt of the monie . . . }	8s.
" at Thirske Sess ^{ns}	4s.

In all, 49s. 4d. Total paid, £51. 19. 4.

So they have paid more than they have received by 41s. 2d.

[Bⁱ. 38^b.] Apud TOPLIFFE, 8 Jan^y., 32 Eliz., before Will. Fairfax, Knt., Will. Hildyard, Chr. Wandesford, Nich. Girlington, and Rob. Briggess, Esquires.

[Made his appearance accordingly and was discharged. Produced his books of account also to the satisfaction of the Court, and his recog^{ce}. discharged.]

Will. Cheseman, Coll^r. for YEDDINGHAM and NORMANBY bridges. His charge, £32. 15. [Produced his account &c, and is discharged.]

[Bⁱ. 39.] Henry Duffield and John Hutchinson, C. C^{es}. of Gilling East, Coll^{rs}. for KILVINGTON bridge, paid over 18s. 4d. to Geo. Grant, to be by him paid to Rog. Mennell, and so &c. Geo. Grant cogn. &c: condition, to pay all money in his hands for GRINTON bridge to the Surv^{rs}. for the same.

Mem. That Chr. Hutchinson, one of the Surv^{rs}. for REETH and MARSKE bridges, acknowledges receipt of all the Allertonshire collection given as the Latin meaning of "TOWRE made only of tymbyr." Skeat also gives "SUMMER, a beam," and referring to Cotgrave's "the piece of timber called a Summer," adds, it is "so called from its bearing a great burden or weight," the analogy being with Sumpter, a pack-horse; O. Fr. Sommier, summer.

for the said bridges from Geo. Grant. And it is Ordered that Mr. Wandesford shall call the Surv^r. of REETH, MARSKE and GRINTON bridges before him, and take their bonds to repaire the said bridges before the Sessions next after Christenmas next, and to make their accountes.

It is also Ordered that the Coll^r. for everie Wap^s. shall enter bond by recogn^{ce}. to gather all such summes as shalbe allotted to his collection, and to pay the same to the Surv^{rs}. within two monthes after the receipt of the Estreat: And the Surv^{rs}. to perfect their acc^t. within halfe a yeare after they have received the monie att the Collectors' handes.

[B^t. 44^b.] Acc^{ts}. for ESSELL Bridge. Charge, £20, of which rec^d.
£15. 10; the balance payable by Langbargh and Whitby Strand.
Expended on the bridge £15. 15. 2.

Item Seth [Holmes, Surv^{or}.] paid for blankes,* bordes, stoopes and railes for a foote bridge† att the end of the stone bridge, 20s.

Item to the carpenters for the makinge of the bridge	10s.
„ for two peices of timber to keep in the stones att both endes of the bridge	3s. 4d.
„ for wood to make piling stakes	2s.
„ for stones and leading of paving cobles‡ and sand	26s. 8d.
„ for pavinge of the bridge at 2d. a yarde	13s. 4d.

* Probably mis-written for 'plankes.' The distinction between boards and planks is evident enough here, as it is in the mouths of practical people: more so than it is perhaps in the pages of our dictionary-makers, who, not a few of them, explain "plank" by "board," and "board" by "plank." True, a plank is but a board of greater thickness, a more substantial board; but the thickness or substance should not be lost sight of.

† There are many features of bridge-building three centuries ago exposed to our view in this account, and this is one of them. The Editor has repeatedly seen in times of flood, and not the very highest only, the roadway over the two high-pitched single-arch old bridges in his parish well out of water from about the springing of the arch, but the roadway of access to the same on one or either side, from one foot to five feet under water. All passage, save for horsemen only (and even for them sometimes), was stopped, of course. Had the old "foote bridge att the ende of the stone bridge" been there, foot passengers might still have passed. We can easily picture the planked bridge with hand-rails in continuation of the stone bridge, and see the use of the "piling-stakes" in constructing it. So too the use, or rather the necessity, of the "two peices of timber to keep in the stones att both endes of the bridge" is abundantly explained. With the rushing wash of the vehement flood across the low ends of the bridge the mason work would be in perpetual risk of being undermined and washed out; the solid timber bond would obviate this. The Editor only a few weeks since was remarking the application of the same principle in the construction of the solidly paved sloping access to the beach from the street at Robin Hood's Bay. The stones were held in their places by a very strong and ingenious framing of wood, consisting of thick battens bound together by cross-ties, so that stone and timber together in one surface presented combined resistance to the might of the waves as well as their (at high water) continual wash. The same consideration explains the necessity for cobble-stones for the pavement (heard of in other places also in these Records) "att both endes of the bridge." Yet another item claims a moment's notice, namely, the charge for paving:—eighty square yards of paving are paid for, which, allowing a width of six feet for the bridge itself—probably a sufficient estimate—gives us a length of twenty yards of paved approach at either end of the bridge, or possibly more at one end and proportionably less at the other.

† This word, which might be misread as 'scare,' and which is, beyond doubt, equivalent to staithe—the word actually put for it in the index at the end of the Bridge Book—is merely the local pronunciation of staithe. To this day the place named Staithes, in the mouths of the country folk, is always sounded as Steeárs, or much as the word 'stairs' is spoken by them. And the word 'staiting' with the sense of a support for a bank of a river, made with piles and battens or planks nailed crosswise, is by no means an unusual one still. See Cleaveland Gloss., in voce, second meaning. From the following most interesting document, for the privilege of making use of which the N. R. Record Society is indebted to the kindness and courtesy of Sir John Lawson of Brough, Bart., whose property it is, it will be seen clearly enough that 'landstaithe' was simply what is now called the 'abutment' of the bridge on either side of the river or stream to be spanned, and the collocation (referred to below) in a future extract of 'staithe' and 'grees,' or steps of stairs, more than justifies what is above advanced.

Contract for the rebuilding of Catterick Bridge in 1422. From the original in the possession of Sir John Lawson, Bart. Written on a piece of parchment 13½ inches × 12 inches. It is not indented, and has no slits for seals. Endorsed "Fuit homo missus a Deo cui nomen erat Johannes."

* It will be observed that this plural form of the adjective agreeing with a plural noun is of repeated occurrence in the present document; but also that it is limited, almost without exception, to the case of the word 'said' or its compounds.

‡ "Traces of the present participle in -and are met with also, but they are now only traces," is the remark made on the old Northumbrian participial form in the Introduction to Cleaveland Glossary, p. xli. * See above, p. 33; and to what is written there it is only necessary to add a reference to an extract from Vol. A⁴, f. 119^b given below, and the note appended thereto, in which the words 'staith' and 'stair'—in its old French form gré, a step—are brought together in unmistakeable connection; though whether that connection depends simply on confusion between the North Country sound of staith—viz., stear or stair—or no, is a question of another kind.

† It seems to be quite uncertain what the "egeoves" were. As named in connection with the arches, and having to be of specified thickness, it is open to surmise that they may have been the ribs of the arch which seem to have been a by no means unusual feature in mediæval bridges. Thus, in the fourteenth-century bridge which stood not far from the Station at Castleton, and was pulled down a few years since, as in the existing bridge at Westerdale of about the same date, and in one of the arches of Yarm bridge, built by Bishop Skirlawe about 1400 (not to mention others), these so-called ribs are apparent, about a foot deep and a foot wide, with interspaces of two feet or more, spanning, and projecting from, the under surface of the arch. And "egeove" may have been the technical term for these ribs.

§ "Alur, Alure, Aluring, Alour, &c. This word appears originally to have signified the passage, gutter, or gallery, in which persons could walk behind a parapet on the top of a wall, &c., or in other situations; but it afterwards came to signify the parapet itself, in which sense it is used in the contract for Catterick Church" (Parker's Gloss. of Architecture). * A noteworthy instance of the reduplication of the relative, by no means obsolete even yet in this district, and more curious still where a few lines lower the old northern form of the relative, 'at,' takes the place of the more English 'that.'

† Several instances besides this will be met with in the after part of the contract wherein this idiom obtains, or in which in other words a plural nominative is found with the singular of the verb. This, too, is still a distinctive feature of this northern mode of speech, and is by no means to be regarded as merely an ignorant lapse in grammar.

‡ "Scapple. To rough-hew, generally applied to stones." Halliwell.

§ The Scottish idiom, as it is sometimes regarded, but in reality as much N. English as Scottish. "It was fit t' gar a man hang hisself," and "it gars me great pain," are two instances (out of hundreds which might have been supplied) from the late F. K. Robinson's Whitby Glossary.

|| The old Northern, or Norse, relative, the use of which is, perhaps, not quite extinct, even yet.

†† Wood, the material. "Cross of tre." "TREEN. Wooden" [that is made of wood]. "'Treen beddes was he wont to make.'" Halliwell.

‡‡ "The ta" and "the tothir" both involve reduplication of the definite article. 'Ta' is simply equivalent to the one. 'A' (Scottish ae), pronounced yah, is of the commonest daily occurrence, but always as joined with a subject, as 'a day' (pronounced yah deea), 'a lad' (yah lad), 'a lass' (yah lass), while 'ane' (pronounced yau) stands by itself, or absolutely, as 'ane iv em.' Ta is = t' a, where t' does duty for the, and it is sounded Tah. Not so very long since the Editor was asked to interpret "ta thee kittles," that is, "the one thigh tickles or itches," the one out of the two, and hence "y^e ta" and "y^e tothire."

§ This is so written. Probably 'itte' is accidentally omitted, and the reading ought to be 'if atte itte'—if that it, 'if that' being an every-day expression throughout this district.

|| This would almost seem to be a word of more than ordinary interest. There can be no doubt that it is correctly written, as it occurs a second time two or three lines lower and in precisely the same form. But it is the only instance of the word with which the Editor is acquainted. Bigging or biggin is of universal occurrence, and alike in old writings, old names, and modern speech, but it is not so with bige, whether it be of one syllable or two; and the only analogue to it, supposing it, as is probable, a one-syllable word, is the O. N. byggð, a dwelling, building to live in. Here it will simply mean building, temporary dwelling. It may be closely allied to if not identical with Scottish bike or byke, a building, a habitation. (See Jamieson,)

Accomptants for HOW, KIRKBY MISPERTON, MALTON and NORMANBY bridges:

May it please you to be certified that, whereas I undertooke to give notice to thaccomptantes for bridge monie within Bulmer and Ridall at the last Easter Sess^{ns}. to make perfect their accountes, and to bring them in upon Tuesday in Whitson-weeke, which accordinglie I performed so far forth as I could: for first where there is a charge of £4 upon Mr. Hebburne, one of the H. C^s. of Bulmer, I suppose his estate to be so weakened as that summe cannott be had: And where Mr. Mansfeildes Ex^{ors}. are charged with £200 for HOW bridge, KIRKBY MISPERTON and MALTON bridges, his Ex^{ors}., Mr. David Waterhouse and Mr. Prestley, are both att London, and so thaccountes att this present cannot be made before you att the day appointed: And for NORMANBY bridge, where a charge of £20 is imposed upon Mr. Slater and Mr. Nendicke, I am informed that thacompt is made and passed by Mr. Tho. Clarke, one of the H. C^s. of Ridall, for them att Topliffe about three yeares since: And where also a charge is imposed upon Charnocke and Ringrose, I take it Charnocke is not able to repay that £4 which he received of the Countrie: And for Ringrose discharge, I take it the Justices of Assizes delivered their opinions, as I have bene shewed. Thus, craving your kind favor for my absence, being lately come from London, I take my leave of you.

From Huton 24th May, 1602. Yours to his uttermost abilities

H. Jenkins.

[KIRKBY MISPERTON bridge is in great decaie: It would please you, therefore, consideration may be had thereof.]

[Bⁱ. 73^b.] It may please your Worshippes to understand that whereas we received your letters from Thirske the 3rd Oct^r., 1589, willing and requiring us with skillfull workmen to survey the ruines and decay of ROMOLD KERKE bridge—the same has been done, and we think 40 markes will hardly suffice: neither can we obtaine any workmen of skill, though we have convented sundrie, that will undertake the same for less, &c.

Romold Kerke, 17 Nov^r., 1589.

Your Worshippes in the Lord, att Commandment,

Rich. Liveley. Will. Dent. Tho. Applebie. John Horne.

[Bⁱ. 74.] Apud THIRSK, 12 July, 7 James.

Stephen Milnes, Rich. Sneaton, Geo. Cockerell, Coll^{rs}. for WHITBY bridge; their charge £74 16.

They demand whereof allowance for 60 oke trees, £22. 13. 4; for monie paid to carpenters for felling, hewing and sawinge thereof, £16. 15. 10; for cariage of 61 loades, £18. 1. 9; for a paire of great wheles, 41s. 2d.; for drinke to wood leaders, 5s. 3d.; to Surveyor for triall of the fitt ground for the placeinge of the new bridge* there, 3s. 4d.; more for the leading of 20 loades of wood, £6. 6. 8; and of 10 loades more leading, 33s. 4d.: And so the disbursementes ar in all £68. 0. 10d. Balance in the hands of the Coll^{rs}., £6. 15. 2. And they do further alleadge that there remains in the handes of Steph. Milnes, Coll^{rs}., . . £5. 4.

* See the entry touching Whitby bridge in II., pp. 319, 320, and note, and also the Introductory Notice to the said Volume, p. xi. It is now apparent that the new bridge was not exactly on the same site as its immediate predecessor, inasmuch as trial of the ground for a fitting place for it is here specified; unless, indeed, it be supposed—as is perhaps more than equally probable—that the new bridge was on a new and improved principle, involving a more elaborate plan. A reference to Charlton's plan of Whitby, made in 1778, shows that the bridge was supported on five sub-structures—probably the "brandreths" of a former entry; and the construction of these, or any earlier form of them, presupposes the testing of the bed of the stream in order to discover the fitness, or unfitness, of the proposed sites for such important parts of the supports on which the intended bridge would rest. Charlton's idea—or, indeed, positive assertion—that the only bridge communication in 1540 between the parts of Whitby on either side the river was by a wooden foot-bridge crossing the Esk at the place called Stone Quay (half a mile higher up the stream than the existing bridge), is so nonsensically irrational that it must have been put aside as absurd at once, even had there not been abundant proof to the contrary. For the street called Baxtergate, which, he says, "had no existence at the dissolution of the Monastery," was described as a via regia in Ministers' Accounts, 31–38 Henry VIII., which of course postulates a bridge at the point where it strikes the banks of the Esk; and, moreover, in the same document a garden "ad finem pontis" in Baxtergate (besides another garden there called Pontegarthe) is specifically named. The inference from the phrase "ad finem pontis" in Baxtergate is that the bridge was in 1540 reached directly from the said street, instead of by two turns almost at right angles, as at present, in which case the old bridge would have stood a score or so of yards south of the present site; and this would explain the Surveyor's work specified in the present entry.

* These charges do not seem to be noted in the Orders at this Sessions in the corresponding place in the Book of MINUTES and ORDERS. Possibly the difference of date—9th April here, 10th April in the Minutes—may suggest an explanation.

[Bⁱ. 85.] At York Assizes, 30th July, 19 James (1621), before Sir John Denham, one of the Barons of the Treasury, and Sir Tho. Chamberlaine, Justice of Common Pleas, &c.

For the speedie repaire of Rippon North Bridge it is ordered by my Lords, the Justices of Assize, that the Justices of Peace of the West and N. Ridings shall forth[with] cause ass^{ts}. to be made and levied of so much monie as will suffice for the repaire thereof, and cause the same to be paid over to thoverseers of the workes of the same bridge. And whereas the Justices of the N. R. did pretend that the inhab^{ts}. of the N. R. ought not to be charged with the repaire of the same bridge, but that the W. R. ought to repaire the same—Therefore it is Ordered that, for this time, the N. R. shall repaire the moitie of the same bridge. And if hereafter it shall appeare that they ought not to be charged therewith—Then the W. R. to repaie them so much as for this time they shall disburse towards the present repaire of the same bridge. And £500 to be imposed on that Ridinge that makes defalte herein.

Per Curiam. Cartwright, Clerk of Assizes.

[To this entry there is a side-note:—To be repaid by y^e West Ridings. See f. 92. The reference is to a long formal entry occupying ff. 92^b–99, detailing a series of references of the case to successive Juries at York Assizes, the final issue of which is that the inhab^{ts}. of the W. R. lose their case and are subjected to a fine of 3s. 4d. The first action is brought at the Assizes held 6th March, 35 Charles II., before Sir Tho. Jones, one of the Justices of Common Pleas, Sir Edward Atkins, one of the Barons of the Treasury, Sir John Kay, Bart., Sir Tho. Slingsby, Bart., and others, or &c. YAROM bridge. Charge £200.

Upon debatinge of the matter in controversie touching the reparation of Yarom bridge, one part whereof lieth within the Countie palatine of Durham, and the other part in the North ridd^e of Yorkshire—It was alleadged on the behalfe of the Inhabitants of Yorkshire that, of Common right and by the expresse wordes of the Statute of 22 Henr. VIII., this bridge extending into both Counties, each Countie or Riding ought to repaire the decaie and ruine of such part thereof respectivelie as lieth in each Countie or Ridinge: That the decaie of that br. is now so greate as the charge of repayringe thereof will amount to five hundred poundes: that this decay hath growne of late yeares principallie by the violent course and inundation of the river of Teise over w^{ch} that br. lieth, by w^{ch} violent course of the water the banke on that side of the river w^{ch} is in the Countie Palatine of Durham is so broken & decaied as by reason thereof cheiflie the said br. is in danger shortlie to fall into utter ruine yf there be not present order for the repayrynge thereof: howbeit the Inhabitants of y^e North Ridd^e of Yorkshire do offer present(l)ie to levie and disburse so much monie as shall beare one halfe of y^e Charge of repayringe the said br., so as y^e Countie Palatine of Durham will do y^e like, and beare y^e other halfe of that charge.. * Although the limit of the year 1620 has been reached in this Volume of BRIDGE ACCOUNTS, it has been thought better to print the preceding extract from f. 85 with the appended notice, and now to go on with the following series of most interesting records touching YAROM Bridge, and the various steps taken in and towards its repair, inclusive also of the curious statement of account and charges incident on the carrying out of the work. Partly the Editor has been influenced by the fact that these entries all stand together in the BRIDGE BOOK, irrespective of date, and partly, but not the least strongly, by the conviction that the interest would be more continuous and sustained by printing them in a body, as they are found, than by dividing them up and affixing each separately at the close of the years to which they severally belong. The further entries in this BRIDGE BOOK will be given in detail at a later period.

sion or other course of triall (w^{ch} they desire may be had with all convenient speed) it shalbe found y^t y^e north ridinge of Yorkshire ought to beare the whole charge of repairinge that br. : the Inhabitants of y^e north ridinge will give sufficient caution to repaie unto the Inhabitan^{tes} of the countie P. of D. so much monie as shalbe by them disbursed towardes the repairing of that bridge.

On the other side it was alleaged on y^e behalfe of the Countie P. of D. y^t the Statute of 22 H. VIII. doth charge both Counties where a decayed br. extendeth into both, onelie in case where it cannott be knowne and proved what Ridinge, Hundred, towne, Parish, person, Landes or Tenementes certaine ought of right to repaire such decayed br. ; But (say they) it is well knowne y^t y^e north-ridinge of Y. onelie ought to repaire this br., as well because within y^e space of 34 yeares last past y^e Inhab^{ts}. of that Ridinge alone have repaired it fower severall times, & to that end did att one time levie thirtie poundes upon y^e Inhab^{ts}. of that Ridinge, as also because a ffee farme Rent of £10 a yeare or thereaboutes, long since given to y^e maintenance of that br., is, and hath bene received and disposed of from time to time by the Inhab^{ts}. of that Ridinge onelie. Besides the Lordes of the towne of Yarome in the N. R. do take toll of all passengers over that br., w^{ch} they conceive to be in nature of pontage & ought to be employed towards y^e reparation of that br. : And lastlie they alleadged y^t y^e Inhab^{ts}. of the N. R. being supplied with cole out of the C. of Durham, the shakinge of that br. with the heavie cartes loden with cole hath bene a principall cause of the decaye thereof : These were the cheife reasons w^{ch} they of the C. P. yeilded to discharge themselves, and to lay the whole charge upon y^e N. R.

Notwithstandinge there was an offer made on y^e behalfe of the C. P. of D. y^t if the N. R. would presentlie undertake y^e whole charge of repairinge the br., and go on with the worke, they would forthwith ioyne with them in Commission or any other legall course to try y^e matter in controversie, and if it should be found or adjudged y^t y^e Inhab^{ts}. of the C. of D. ought to contribute to y^e charge of repairinge that br., y^t they would give likewise sufficient caution to repay to the Inhab^{ts}. of y^e N. R. y^e one halfe of such monies as should be expended about that worke.

But now forasmuch as y^e decaye of this br. is such and so greate att this present as if y^e reparation thereof should be referred till such a legall triall be had, as is desired on both sides, y^e ruine is like to grow irreparable, and that w^{ch} may now be done for fower or five hundred poundes will not (as was affirmed to us) after the next winter be done for two thousand poundes—We have therefore thought fitt according to his Maj^{ties} direction on that behalfe to make this present order :—

That the Justices of Peace within the N. R. of Y. shall before the feast of S. Michael next ensewing cause to be levied and taxed upon y^e Inhab^{ts}. of that R. two hundred poundes for and towards y^e present charge of susteyninge and repairinge of y^e s^d br., called Yarom br. And y^t likewise before y^e s^d feast of S. Michael the Justices of peace within y^e C. P. of D. shall cause other two hundred poundes to be taxed and levied upon y^e Inhab^{ts}. of that C. for and towards y^e same charge: And y^t within one weeke after y^e s^d feast of St. M. two Justices of y^e Peace within y^e C. P. of D. shall meete with two other J. of y^e Peace of y^e N. R. att y^e towne of YARAM neare y^e s^d br., and shall then and there appointe two Treasurers to receive and disburse y^e s^d monies, and two Surveyors to sett forward y^e s^d worke of reparation: Provided y^t before y^e s^d two hundred poundes levied upon the Inhab^{ts}. of the C. P. of D. shalbe delivered to y^e Treasurers appointed as aforesaid, the Justices of y^e Peace of the N. R. shall give sufficient securitie to y^e J. of y^e P. of the C. P. of D. for repayment of y^e s^d £200 to the Inhab^{ts}. of the C. P. of D., if by anie Commission or other course of triall to be had within fower yeares next ensewinge, it shalbe found or adiudged y^t y^e Inhab^{ts}. of y^e N. R. alone ought to beare y^e entyre charge of repairinge y^e s^d br. without anie contribution to be had from y^e C. P. of Durham.

Jo. Denham.—Jo. Davye.

[f. 87.] Apud YAROME 21 Sept^r. 1624.

It is offered by Sir David Foulis, Kn^t. and Baronett, and Will. Penniman, Esq. two of his M^{ties} Justices of peace within y^e N. R. of y^e Countie of Y. on y^e behalfe of y^e s^d N. R., y^t att a generall Q^r. Sessions to be holden within y^e s^d N. R. there shalbe an order made for y^e securinge of ccli ordered by y^e Judges of Assizes to be paid by y^e Inhab^{ts}. of the C. of D. towards y^e repaire of Yarome Br., yf upon triall by lawe it shall appeare y^t y^e said C. of D. is not liable to beare y^e charge thereof as well as y^e s^d Countie of Yorke.

And for the manner of y^e triall touching y^e right of y^e repairyng of y^e s^d br., y^e s^d Justices do referr themselves to y^e choise of y^e s^d C. P. of D. to make election by their Councell how it shalbe; so as y^e s^d triall may be in some indifferent countie, Whereas no Inhab^{ts}. of y^e C. P. of D. or y^e C. of Y. shalbe of y^e Jurie in that triall.

* The Volume with parchment cover and marked RECUSANT, 1611, containing the lists of Recusants which are printed here in due sequence, commencing with the Thirsk April Sessions of 1611 and continuing to the Autumn Sessions of 1613, was not known to be in existence when the North Riding Archives were examined by Mr. Jeaffreson. It was handed to the Editor after the entire contents of Vol. II. of the North Riding Records were already in print, with the remark that it had turned up in the course of the further continued clearing and arranging of the various Records preserved at Northallerton. It is a little unfortunate, from several points of view, that it should have remained unknown, and its existence unsuspected, until after the completion of both the volumes to which its contents rightly appertained. It is, however, thought better to print it in its entirety (as to all material details) in the earlier part of the present Volume. It will be observed that the orderly arrangement under the heads of the different Wapentakes, with the various parishes severally found in each, prevailing in the Registers A and B, does not obtain in the present Register until fo. 20 is reached. It is proposed to distinguish this present Register as [Reg. A^o.]

* A statement of considerable interest, as more than probably bearing on the subject noticed in the Introduction to Vol. II. p. ix.

† “MOUTER. Pronunciation of multure.” Cleavel. Glossary. The word measure above is perfectly indefinite. It may mean a bushel, a peck, or half a peck (as it does just below), or any other measured quantity.

[87.] The Justices now and here assembled generallie saie that they wilbe readie to doe all right in any matter of controversie between the North and West Ridings, and especially concerning the repaire of Rippon North Bridge.† But they hope the Justices of Assizes will not impose anie fine upon them in not contributing towards the repaire thereof, for that it is scituate neare halfe a mile within the W. R. Yet they further saie that if the Justices of the W. R. will lay downe the whole monie for repaire thereof, and make it appeare that we of the N. Earle's Philology of the English Tongue, p. 486. Though we often hear of "the next day," "the next time," &c, yet "the next way" is not so familiar.

ORDERS made &c.

Whereas Geo. Emerson was committed by Will. [93.] Whereas all the H. C. of this Division did promise at last Sess^{ns}. at Thirske to bring in all their monies for Topcliffe bridge, and (except them of Bulmer and Pickering-lieth) have failed to do so—Ordered that they shall immediately pay up, in default whereof a fine of £5 on each defaulter, for that the Court doth conceive that either the monies are in their hands for their owne private benefitt, or that they have beene too negligent therein, and an imputation is laid on the Justices that they have not been carefull for repaireing of the said bridge which lieth on the roade betwixt London and Barwicke; Sir Tho. Norcliffe is desired to view the decay of Newsome bridge, which if presentlie repaired will require but a smale charge, and to cause the same to be repaired as soon as the time of the yeare will suffer, and the charges shall be duly forthcoming, &c; whereas Henrie Cusson, his wife and children, were bound to appear last Mich^s. Sess^{ns}., and made default by pretence of agreement with Tho. Atkinson—Ordered that all the said parties shall appear at next Sessions, &c.

[93^b.] Guy Bell of Fawdington to be discharged of his fine of 20s.

* This entry is somewhat obscure. Probably the meaning is that Emerson was, by the oversight or neglect of one of the officials specified, not brought before the Court at all.

for not appearing at last Mich^t. Sessions, seeing he is present to serve on the Jury at this Sessions: Will. Nawton fined 20s. for his misbehaviour in Court and abusing the Graund Jurie with evill wordes; 20s. added to the pension (£4) of Nath. Hoggard, L. S., in respect of his age and weaknes in his limmes by reason of divers hurtes and bruises received in the warres; that an Order made by two Justices for a Broughton widow shalbe confirmed, and the arrears due in virtue of the said Order shalbe paid, and a warrant made to the Overseers of Appleton in the Streete to provide a habitation for her and her children according to the said Order; and if they refuse, then a warrant &c for their appearance at the next &c.

[94.] Upon the letters of Sir Henry Belassis, and Geo. Westbie's letters to Sir Henry, the Justices present give their consent that Westbie shall have £7 for everie oxe for the Provision of his Ma^{ties} Houshold due for the N. R. for this year (1622): And for 2 yeares after, if he will undertake to free the Countrie of the same provision:—Sir Henry to receive the money due for this year and to see that Westby fulfils his part of the agreement; John Binninge of Tirtington, apprentice to Steph. Hogg of the same, cordwainer, having divers years of his apprenticeship to serve, and having been assigned by his maister to serve those years with one Lawr. Peacocke of the same place, cordwainer, and a sufficient workman, but obstinately refusing to serve the said Peacocke,—therefore a warrant &c against Bynninge to bring him &c to enter bond &c to appear at the next Sessions, to shew cause &c.

† See Vol. II., 22, and note. There is here another proof of the inaccuracy of the current statements touching the introduction and prosecution of the alum manufacture in North Yorkshire. The absurd fable about Sir Tho. Chaloner's part in it may be seen in Young's Whitby, ii. 807, Charlton's Whitby, p. 307, Atkinson's Cleveland, ii. 46, &c. It must suffice here to direct attention to the apparent insufficiency (or worse) of the "historical" statements touching the rise and progress of the art at Guisborough. Young says (p. 510), "Belman Bank, near Guisborough, began, as has been noticed, about the year 1595, or soon after." At p. 808, he says, "the art was not brought to perfection till the year 1608," when Sir John Bouchier "joined with Lord Sheffield, President of the North, Sir Thos. Chaloner, Sir David Foulis (bought Ingleby in 1609, Ord., p. 432), and others who had estates in this quarter, in bringing the art to perfection." Belman Bank "seems to have been wrought for ten years or upwards, when, owing to the exhaustion of the mine, or rather its becoming difficult of access, the work was transferred to another spot, where it was carried on for fifteen years or more; after which that place also was abandoned for the same reason. Lord D'Arcy's family opened a work near Guisborough, on the Whitby road, A.D. 1600, or soon after. It seems to have continued for fifteen or twenty years. . . . Guisborough was established, perhaps we should say revived, by Wm. Chaloner, Esq., about the year 1766." No reference whatever, it is seen, is made to any works carried on by or for the King himself, nor any to Camden's statement that "Sir Paul Pinder rented the Guisborough pits of the Crown, at the annual rent of £12,500," previously to the death of Charles I.

[113.] Whereas £30 was allowed for Balder bridge at the Richm. Sessions, 12th Jan^r., 1618, and the Justices there have requested confirmation of the grant from this Court—Ordered that if the Richm. Justices will certifie under their handes at the next General Sessions their desire herein, as also to paie hereafter their rates accordinge to the Order made before his Ma^{ties} Councill at Yorke in June last,—

* This Benevolence may be the subsidy of some £60,000 which was voted by the Commons in November, 1621, previously to the memorable protest of the House on the 18th December, which was torn out from the Journals of the House by the King himself in the presence of his Council and the Judges. Is it possible to read between the lines of this Minute and detect something of the feeling that lay below in the minds of the Justices present at this Sessions?

that then this Courte will take due consideration hereof. And further that the said Richm^{re}. Justices shall certifie at the next Sessⁿ. what sum will be sufficient for the finishinge of Morton bridge, as well for pilinge as for the stone worke; loss by fire,—20s. allowed; 20s. to be allowed to Benj. * This would seem to be a word by no means without interest. The general idea of the meaning of spill and its various forms (speal, spelt, speel, spall, spawl, &c.) is "a splinter, thin slip of wood" (Skeat) ; "SPILLS. Thin slips of wood or paper used for lighting candles, &c. Var. Dial." Halliwell. The idea of splinter is, however, the leading one in some of the above forms. [See Hall. on spawl, speale, &c ; Skeat on spell (4), spill.] But in Germ. speiler, skewers, Danish and Dan. Dial. spile, slips or splinters of wood applicable as pins, and denoting also the cross-bars or rungs of a ladder, and our Clevel. spells (used in the same sense also in Lincolnshire and elsewhere), the thin cross-bars which strengthen and keep together the legs of a chair, the idea is no longer of a slip but of a pin, rod or stick-like object—the very sense in other words which is presented to us here in the word "speele" applied to a spit.

* The meaning is obviously pretending to be, or acting ostensibly as, a bailiff. We have the same idea in the derived word supposititious. Skeat quotes "Fr. supposer to suppose, to put, lay, or set under, to suborn, forge. . . . The original sense is, 'to lay under, put under, hence to substitute, forge, counterfeit.'" But in the present case it is a person, not a thing, "supposed," which assumes a greater latitude of meaning.

[198.] ORDERS made &c.

Ordered unanimously that in all future laies and cesmentes levied &c by the Constable of Sowerbie nere Thirske upon Rich. Lockwood of Sowerbie, gent^a., and Chr. Ascough of Sowerbie Park, gent^a., for their landes in Sowerbie, the said Rich. Lockwood shalbe ass^d. and rated for his demaine land in Sowerbie after the rate of fifteene oxeganges,* being three oxeganges more than heretofore, and Chr.

* In Vol. II., p. 306, note, reference is made to a curious old MS. book kept by Mr. Mauleverer of Arncliffe Hall, the greater part of which is taken up with parish accounts and memoranda of different kinds. In various places the system of rating on which the present entry depends is adverted to, and some extracts may be more illustrative than perhaps a mere descriptive notice might be. In the years 1582-1588

Ascough, for his halfe of Sowerbie Parke, after the rate of nyne oxenganges, being three oxenganges more than formerlie, the inhab^{ts}. of Sowerbie to continue to be rated as heretofore; that a warrant &c to bring Will. Whitwell of Staingrave, yeom^a., to be bound &c and to answer what shalbe objected against him by Ingram Lister, Clark, &c: and that a Supersedeas shalbe made per Curiam in regard the said Will. Whitwell hath appeared in Courte and entred bond accord- inglie.

[198^b.] Whereas the Townshipp of Knaton hath complained to this Courte touching the wrongfull deteyninge. of the nynthe parte of all laies and cesmentes out of the hamlett of Brawith, within their Constablerie, which nynth part is according to the rate and proportion of eight oxganges, being the full proportion for Brawith for the contribution of their said nynth part with the said towne of Knaton— after mature consideration, the whole matter having been gone into in the hearinge of the representatives of the inhab^{ts}. of Knaton and Rich. Cockerell, now tennant of Brawith in the right of Elizth. his it appears there were, besides the “42 Oxganges in the Towne,” “16 builded frontes” and “16 unbuilded frontes.” In 1637, while the number of the oxganges remained the same, as a matter of course, the number of builded frontes had increased to 29, the unbuilded ones remaining as before, and it is stated that the 29 builded frontes stand for 6 oxganges, and the 16 unbuilded for 3½ oxganges, “in all 51 oxganges and a halfe.” Under date Aprill 30, 1626, an entry occurs as follows:—“The whole sesse for the subsidie, 32s. : unde Ingleby 16s., Arnecliffe, 16s. ; which cometh to 3½d. an oxengange; a builded frount, 1½d., an unbuilded frount ½d.” But the principle was extended to all parish liabilities depending on proportional fulfilment. Thus, in 1628, stands “the manner of the Pound-fould fence. Every oxgange maketh about five quarters,” and then comes an enumeration of the tenants or occupiers of the several oxganges as follows:—

Henry Stockton	2	My brother Cr.	8
John Humphrey	7	Dent	2
Mr. Sawkeld	5½	My brother Tunstall	3
Will. Kilton	1	Harry Stockton (for John Simson's	} 4
John Simson	3	farne)
Tho. Thomson	3½	Will. Jackson	2
Gabriell	1		—

In all 42

Then again, “The cawsey beyond the Carr brige to the Crosse. Every oxgange hath 3 yarges and a foote. Will. Jackson, husb^a., beginnes next to the Crosse, and so every one in order.” And in a note already given as to the “Order for common day-woorkes, every 7 oxgang must find a draught, &c.” It is almost unnecessary to add that eight oxgangs (or bovates) made up the carucate, that two of these ‘bovates’ or ‘oxganges’ constituted a ‘virgate,’ and that a virgate is equivalent to a ‘husband-land,’ the names varying in different parts of the kingdom. And here it may be briefly noted that Will. Jackson, the occupier of two oxganges in the above enumeration, is, when next mentioned, styled a ‘husbandman,’ being the occupier of a ‘husband-land.’

wife, it is Ordered that as Brawith, containing 8 oxganges, has, time out of mind, been held to be the ninth part of the Township of Knaton,* and has paid the ninth part of all laies and cesmentes therein, it shall for the time to come continue to pay the ninth part and no more; whereas owing to a dispute of Aiton in Langbargh, viz.: Great Aiton, Little Aiton, Nunthropp, Nunhouse, Riall Hill and Tunstall, touching their ordinariē cesmentes and laies for his Ma^{ties} service and the countries good, [the same] hath bene neglected and hindered; and whereas there hath bene a certificate exhibited unto this Courte under the handes of the most ancient men of the said parish, specifying their knowledge how, ancientlie and most agreeable to reason, the said assess-mentes and layes have been, and are to be, charged [199.] amongst the said townes and hamlettes, affirming thus—that Nunthropp, Nunhouse and Riall Hill [probably the modern Rye Hill] hath, and ought to paie the fowerth part of all the laies that hath bene laid upon the whole parish of Aiton; and that the other three-fowerth partes was laid upon Great Aiton, Little Aiton, and Tunstall, whereof Tunstall did and doth paie still the fowerth part of what Nunthropp, Nunhouse and Riall Hill doth paie, and Little Aiton is to pay thrice as much as Tunstall, and Great Aiton is to pay as much as all the rest† [example given on an ass^t. of 4s.]:—It is now Ordered that this proportion and forme shalbe henceforth kept by the inhab^{ts}. of the said townes and hamlettes; whereas Will. Harding of Old Malton, Clarke, with Ja^s. Leife [See above, p. 177] did by night and without lawful warrant take away a widow's cow, value £3. 10, the said Harding shall pay a fine of 20s. to the King, and restore the cow in as good condition as when she was taken away, or els to paie £3 to the owner, whether she shall accept of: and Harding to remain in the Sheriffes custodie and be committed to York Castle until he shall performe this Order.

[199^b.] Whereas Godfr. Dowsinge owed John Wilkinson 13s., for which he did pawne to the said Wilkinson a cow worth 33s. 4d., and had since tendered the said 13s. to Wilkinson, and demanded his cove againe, which the said Wilkinson would not receive, but unconscionable deteineth the pore mans cove for his said 13s.—Ordered that Wilkinson pay over to Dowsinge 20s. 4d., the balance of the price of the cow, and acknowledge himself satisfied of his said 13s., and be bound &c to pay the said 20s. 4d. : And for divers misdemeanours shall brew no more nor keep an alehouse, and shalbe in the Sheriffes custodie until &c. ; a warrant &c to attach Rob. Judson, Constable of Kirkby Moorside, &c for negligence in serving Justices' warrants ; that £262 shalbe presentlie estreated &c, whereof £178. 16. 8 is for the Kinges Provision for the next yeare, att the rate of £7. 6. 8 [for an oxe], and £79. 16. 8 for the arrearages of Tho. Lomley, the late Purveyor his debt, which Mr. Westbie hath bene forced to paie unto the Lordes of the Greencloth, and £13. 6. 8 residue of the said sum, is allowed to Mr. Westbie, now Purv^r., for his charges in attending, and for the interest of Lomleyes arreare formerlie paid by Mr. Westbie : And the whole said sum to be paid into Court at the next Christenmas Sessions.

* In Domesday, f. lxxxv., it is stated that in Cheniueton (Knayton) the Bishop of Durham holds four carucates and the King two. In Kirkby's Inquest, p. 100, it is said that the Bishop holds seven carucates in Knaeton of the King in capite, and at p. 340 Brawith is associated with Knayton as so held by the Bishop. Thus there is an increase of one carucate since Domesday times up to 1320. More accurate measurements at a later period might easily bring the whole up to nine carucates, of which Brawith contained one.

† That is exclusive of Nunthorpe, Nunhouse, and Riall Hill: for, in the example, Great Ayton is charged with "halfe of the whole, which is 2s."

[200.] Certain recogn^{ces}. forfeited at Christmas and Easter Sessions last to be discharged, on payment of fees due to the Clerk of the Peace ; John Smith of Oswaldchurch, bound at the last Assizes at Yorke for his appearance att this Courte, has appeared and in open Court made submission to Sir Rich. Vaghan for some injuries by him offered to the said Sir Richard ; whereas Raph Eure, Esq., one of the Surv^{rs}. for Bense bridge, hath disbursed 16s. 6d. more than was allowed for the said bridge, and for that the bridge is a little decayed since the making thereof, which he hath undertaken for 13s. 6d. more to repaire the same—therefore, 30s. more shalbe presentlie collected &c and paid to the said Mr. Raph Eure ; 10s. to be paid to a poor man &c ; and as much to a poor woman from Biland, on condition &c.

[200^b.] A fuller statement of the sentence on the convicted witch : e.g., she is to be sett on the pillorie once a quarter in some markett towne in the Ridinge upon some faire daie or markett day, and after her release and year of good behaviour she is to stand to such further Order as the Courte shall sett downe therein ; a warrant to detain Tho. North, now prisoner in York Castle, until he shall discharge himselfe of eight poundes, or thereaboutes, of the Countries monie which he hath in his handes.

Harding of Pickeringe, for sundry misdemeanours, and many warrants &c, and they have been sometimes arreasted and entered recog^{ces}, which nevertheless they forfeited &c—[233^b.] Therefore a warrant &c to arrest them and lodge them in Yorke Castle until next Assizes, that they may surely be made to answer before the Judges of Assize &c; Whereas a warrant &c to apprehend Peter Waineman of Lofthouse &c to answer what might be objected against him by Phillip Weath, Clerke, but he escaped arrest by leaving the country, now as he is come again, a warrant &c at next Sessions; the two men indicted for hunting conies [See above] to be bound to the good behaviour &c; Mr. Lomley, H. * From the list of Rectors of Crathorne given by Graves (Cleveland, p. 110, note) it appears that Rog. Belwood was presented in 1623, David Jacy, named next before him, having been presented in 1608. But the latter is named (I., 211) as Clerk of West Rounckton in 1611. This Mr. Scarth then must have succeeded him at Crathorne.

Orders have been made for the carriage of stones for the finishing of Topliffe bridge, which stones lye now ready to be carried, but the inhab^{rs}. of Topliffe and others charged in the said Orders neglect and refuse to obey them, they are to be carried according to the former Orders; John Wright of Ragby, gent^l., and Rob. Lassells of Eriholme to be Thrers. for L. S. and Hosp^{ls}. respectively; for Langbargh, for 1624, and Geo. Apud Richmond, 15th April, 1624, before Sir Tim. Hutton, John Wilson, D.D., Math. Jobson, and John Dodsworth, Esq^{rs}. &c.

[235^b.] Whereas we whose names are hereunder wryten, J.P. of the N. R., do find by an Order made at the last Sessions at Thirske (in the absence of most of us that do usuallie attend the Kinges Service everie Qu. Sessions) that the next Sessions for Richm^{re}. are appointed to be holden at Northallerton, which place wee thinke verie inconvenient: And therefore we (upon better consideration for the ease and good of the country) have thought good to alter the Sess^{ns}. from North-allerton to Richmond, and do hereby, with our generall consentes, Order and appoynte that the next Generall Qu. Sess^{ns}. to be adjourned from Helmesley shalbe holden at Richmond, where it hath byne usually holden: and the rather for that divers persons are already bound by recogn^{ce}. for their appearance att Richmond: And we doe require and command the Clarke of the Peace to make oute all proces for his Ma^{ties}. Service against all manner of persons that are indicted or presented for their aparance att Richmond the 13th July next, and this our Order shalbe a sufficient discharge for the said Clarke in this behalfe.

Ja⁴. Moorson, lab^r., for stealing 14s. 2d. in money; Leon. Dale, lab^r., and a woman, both of Robinhood-bay, for stealing from the mill of Geo. Coniers, gentⁿ., a peck of wheat (10d.); Elizth. Blake, also of Robin Hood's Bay, for stealing a hen (4d.).

* This name, almost certainly, should be Sneaton, as probably should be the name of the preceding Juryman. Except Mess^{rs}. Phillipps and Smith all the rest are residents in the vicinity of Whitby; and Smeaton is far removed.

[237.] Alice Milson, for stealing a cock and hen, each worth 3d.; Ann Milson for harbouring the last-named person after the felony; a Whitby joyner for stealing a wallet (3d.), a pound of pepper (2s.), two pounds of raisons (6d.), and divers other goods, to the value of 16d., contained in the said wallet, and 6d. in money.

[237^b.] Rich. Potter, lab^r., for stealing certain yron geare (2s.); Isabel Bennison for stealing two geese (10d.); Ja^s. Moorson again, for stealing two cod-fishes (6d.); Jane Wright for harbouring the fore-named Moorson after the felony.

[238.] Three fullers from Danby, Lease Rigg, and Glasedale for exercising the art, mystery &c of a weaver's trade, without &c; Math. Harland of Egton Bridge, capper, for sufferinge his salmon hecques* to stand in the Eske in unseasonable times, therby killing many salmons in the time of kipper, contrary &c [Submits &c and is fined 2s. 6d.].

[238^b.] Will. Cheesman of Lavingham, yeomⁿ., for killing certaine moorgame within the Forest of Pickeringe on April 22nd instant [Submits &c and is fined 20s.]; Tho^s. Ingledew and Rob. Foster, Overseers of Eston, for not making their monthlie meetinges &c [Submit &c and are each fined 20s.]; Fr. Milnes of Aislaby in Cleiveland for that he, with divers others unknown, did, on Easter day last, in the time of afternoon Service, play in the churchyard there, at a game called Trippet,† and did molest and disturbe the Minister there, readinge Divine Service, together with the parishioners there, &c.

* This is a word which finds place neither in Jamieson nor Halliwell, though it is probably coincident in meaning, and with a close analogy of idea besides, with the "Fish-garths" of the latter, and the Scottish "Fische-garthe. A weir for catching and retaining fish." "Medietas ejusdem piscariæ vocatæ le Fish-Hekkes" at Sleights (Whitby Chart., ii. 744, 763, S.S.), however, shows it to be no new phrase in Eastern Cleveland. "HECK. A rack, to hold fodder for horse or cattle. O. N. hagi; O. Sw. hag; A. S. hag, hege, or hegge; Dan. hæk, hakke. The original meaning in most of these words is a fence or hedge made with boughs and sprays cut from trees, to serve as a boundary or fence to pasture-grounds" (Cleavel. Glossary). With this compare Jamieson's "YAIR, YAIRE, YARE. An inclosure, built of stones, or constructed of stakes and wattled work, stretching forth into a tideway, for the purpose of detaining the fish when the tide ebbs," and a fair idea of "Fish-hecks" or "Salmon hecques" will be obtained. There is little reason to doubt that garth in "fish-garth," weir, yare, are all intimately connected, depending on the root war, to defend, not to speak of two of them at least as variations of the same form. There is no doubt whatever, the Editor thinks, that this word YARE supplies the true derivation of Yarm, Yarome, Yarum.

† There can be but little doubt that this is the game nowadays usually called "Spell a' Knor." Halliwell, quoting from Hunter, speaks of a game called Trip, wherein the ball (a hard one of wood or bone) is "struck with a pummel placed at the end of a flexible rod called the Trip-stick," and which is stated to be almost peculiar to the North of England. "Spell and Knor," or, as it is really sounded, Spell-a'-knor, means in reality play at ball, as spell depends on O. N. spil, play, a game, at spila to play; Dan. spil, spille; knor or knur is O. N. knöttr, Dan. knort.

Names of the Jury &c Rex v. the prisoners specially named above:—

John Pursglove, Barth. Ableson, Will. Hutchinson, Will. Allitson, Fr. Carleill, Tho. Williamson, Will. Man, Will. Huntrodes, Will. Nattres, Jos. Jackson, Rob. Gurdon, and Rob. Robson, yeomen,— [239.] Who find Moorson and Wright not guilty, Dale guilty, Blake not guilty, both the Milsons, and Potter, guilty; [239^b.] and Bennison not guilty [Those convicted to be whipped &c].

Ordered that a warrant &c to the Constable of Aislaby to whipp Fr. Milnes for playing at Trippet on Easter day last in time &c.

[A⁴. 240.] ORDERS made* at the Sessions holden at THIRSKE, 7th April, 1624.

It is Ordered, by and with the consent of Sir Rich. Vaghan and the inhab^{rs}. of Ampleforth, that all laies and cesmentes hereafter to be levied within Ampleforth and Thorpe shall be equally levied between them, so that each shall pay half; and, with like consent, that the arrearages for about seaven yeares now last past shalbe paid by Sir Rich. Vaghan and the occupiers of Thorpe according to this proportion; that all former Orders made by this Court touching the repaire of the Richm^{re}. Justices att the Generall Sessions holden for this Division after Michaelmas shall stand in force and be now confirmed: And that no rates for bridges be made in any part of the N. R. by anie Justices, but att the Generall Sessions holden after Easter.

Signed by Sir Henry Belassis, Sir Tho. Gower, Knts. Bart., Sir Rich. Cholmley, Sir Rich. Vaghan, Sir Rich. Darley, and Sir Tho. Laton.

[A⁴. 240^b.] HELMESLEY.

Qu. Sessions at, 8th July, 1624. Before David Foulis, Tho. Gower, Knts. Bart., Edw. Watterhouse, Tho. Belassis, Tho. Norcliffe, Will. Sheffield, Tho. Laton, Rich. Darley, Knts., Will. Aldburgh, Rog. Gregorie, John Talbott, jun^r., and Tho. Best, Esquires.

Tho. Denton, gent^l., Deputy &c.

Norse knurp, a ball. What Hunter calls the "pummel," on the end of a flexible stick, is here called trippit-stick, and there is little doubt that Pr. Pm. TRIPPIT, trebgot (a trap for catching birds), trypet, trebuchet, trap, are all most intimately connected, and that thus the "game called trippet" is really a game at trap, an article of that sort with an iron spring to throw the ball up into the air on being touched with the end of the trippet-stick, being an essential implement in the play called "Spell-a'-knor."

What is probably meant is the iron adjustment at the fore end of the plough beam, with a moveable link or shackle fitting into notches in it, so as to "give" more or less "land" to the plough, to which shackle the arrangement of swingle-tree and stretchers, to or from which the plough-traces are hooked, may itself be conveniently attached, or detached.

Topham of Burton in Bushopdale, yeomⁿ., for building a cottage, and not laying &c.

[270^b.] A like presentment touching another man of the same place; a long entry involving a presentment of five persons for an assault on Chr. Roccliffe, who, with Rich. Harrison, was Deputy Bailiff in a distress served upon three other bailiffs (Geo. Rickinson, Tho. Sampson and Marm. Etherington) who had made an unjust or illegal seizure (by distress) of stock from one Fr. Harrison, and were constrained by replevin of cattle on distress to make good their value to him, &c, and for rescue of the cattle seized by the said Deputy-bailiffe.*

"Bald, formerly ball'd or balled, signifies 'streaked,' from Welsh bal, having a white streak on the forehead, said of a horse" [Skeat]. Again, the cattle seized from the three bailiffs are described as seized under a "warrant de Withernam," which word is simply an Anglo-Saxon legal term, name being a taking, seizing of goods &c, a distress; and withernam, the same word with a prefix indicating reversal or contrary action. The Statutes under which the proceedings are taken are 52 Henry III. c. 21, 1 and 2 Phil. and Mary, c. 12, &c. The stock seized, and rescued, were two black oxen (£4. 6. 8), five kine (£7), and two horses (20s.).

* This is the first of a number of like annotations at the side, which may be of value as showing some tokens of the reaction which is said to have set in coincidentally with the accession of Charles I.

† This is historically if not ecclesiastically correct. Bilsdale Midcable is a parish by itself, but the other part of the district so called was a dependency of Rivaulx in monastic times, and was looked upon as connected ecclesiastically with Helmsley. Now it appears to be considered part of the parish of Hawnby.

* Another illustration of the working of a principle adverted to in a previous note. All Comondale in Domesday times was manorially, if not practically, associated with Danby. On the endowment of Guisborough Priory in 1119, however, one considerable portion of it was allotted to that Religious House, and from that time has been, and is still, looked upon as a division of Guisborough parochially.

* "SIT ON ONE'S KNEES, TO. To kneel, to take and retain the kneeling posture. An expression of great antiquity. In the NORTH. GOSPEL, Luke xxii. 41, it is said that our Lord mid gesetnum cneowum gebad (with set knees prayed). In Layamon, ii. 506, three chieftains named 'setten an heore cneowen' (sit on their knees) as suppliants; and, to cite no other instances, in Chaucer we have, 'And down anon he sitte him on his kne' (Sompnour's Tale, p. 93), and 'she on her knees her sette' (Clerk of Oxenford's Tale, p. 104)."—*Cleavel. * A singularly interesting entry from every point of view, but especially so in connection with the matters somewhat cursorily dealt with in the Introductory chapter of Vol. II., pp. vii. et seq., and the notes to the same. The common-field, the head-land and its uses, the encroachment and the like, are all brought under notice at one view.

Lomley's arrearages paid by the said Mr. Westby, as also for his attendance, expenses, &c, that, whereas a great part of the said monies is yet unpaid, to his loss and prejudice, [27^b.] and the fault cannot yet be discovered by reason that much of the said monies was paid to several persons for Mr. Westby's use, and the Order made at the Helmsley Jan^r. Sessions in 1624 [See above, p. 226] was not duly attended to by the H. C.'s (some not attending at all and the rest not bringing their acquittances &c; without which the accounts could not be properly gone into)—Therefore all H. R. did petition that, in respect of manie inconveniences and unnecessary charge [28.] and trouble to the country likely to befall through holding the Sessions at Gisbrough, that place might be altered &c, and the petition being referred by the Lords of the Privy Council to the Lo. Keeper of the Great Seale, asking him to take such of the Judges as he saw fit into his counsel, and Baron Denham, Mr. Justice Hutton, and Mr. Justice Harvey (who of the rest of the Judges are best acquainted with that country) being summoned accordingly, and it appearing in conference with them, that no Sessions had been kept at Gisbrough for many years, and then, in respect it is of smale and meane receipt, and more remote from the center and midst of that Ridinge then other places more usuall and more indifferent for resort of the countrie, his Lordshipp, with consent of the Judges, decides that the next Qu. Sessions shall be at Thirsk, and thereafter as the Justices shall settle as being most convenient—yet with this direction, that it be not removed to places remote and inconvenient, unles it be upon verie weightie and important causes, as in time of sicknes, or the like: And to the end that there may be a saife and legall discharge of the said Order, and entrie made in the Sessions Rolls concerninge that intended appointment for Gisbrough, it is Ordered that a new Commission of the Peace, which is, in law, a Supersedeas to the present Commission, shalbe forthwith awarded for that Ridinge, whereupon the Justices to be named in the said new Commission may give Warrant for the said Sessions to be holden at Thirsk, as is above Ordered by his Lordshipp, according to the forme of law, and the usuall course in like case. Tho. Coventry.

[28^b.] The inhab^{ts}. of Northallerton that are assessed by their neighbours shall pay all such rates &c imposed on them by the xxiii, or the most of them, together with all arrearages &c, and if they refuse then a Warrant &c att the next Sessions : and in the mean time Sir Coniers Darcy and John Dodsworth, Esq., to heare all parties of the said towne, and bind to the next Sessions anie such as they shall finde unwilling to abide what end they shall thinke fittest to stand and continue for the said rates, if they find cause to alter anie of them ; Will. WHO PRESENT—

A man for stealing a burthen of beanes (16d.), and another, a wainelode of turves (2s. 6d.).

* In the original this stands—Parcell' Honor' Manerii de Pickeringe. I do not think Honor' is an abbreviation for honorabilis, and if not it must be of Honoris. Still the phraseology is unusual, and I note it as such. Pickering, with its forest, was retained in manu Regis in Domesday times, and always remained so. The Manor, Castle and Forest of Pickering was granted to Edmund Earl of Lancaster by his father, Henry III., and his son and heir, Thomas, had the grant renewed by Edward I.; but the Honor of Pickering, or of the Manor of Pickering, does not seem to have been the term usually, if ever, applied to this as a Royal Manor.

† I Halliwell gives the term ALE-CONNER, with this annotation:—"According to Kersey, 'an officer appointed in every court-leet to look to the assise and goodness of bread, ale and beer,'" and in a quotation from the Cobler of Canterburie one is mentioned who had been for "long seven yeare, of the towne the ale-conner." Otherwise "ale-kenner," "ale-viewer," and, no doubt, as in the text, "ale-taster."

[39^b.] A man for an assault &c [fined 20s.]; a woman for stealing a silver spoon (5s.); Rob. Bossall of Huby, yeomⁿ., for, in time of pestilence there, uttering seditious and opprobrious words concerning Sir Will. Sheffeld, viz. as follows:—I will sett such a blacke bltche in his arse as he never had in his life, and, I have no bullettes but I will shoote beanes in his arse [Submits himself &c, and fined £40 : sent to York Castle and afterwards released by Order, Jan^y. 9th, 1624].

[40.] A Great Aiton gentⁿ. for an assault and affray on a woman [Submits &c, and is fined 5s.]; a Whitby sailor for an assault &c in the markett-stead^e* there [Submits &c, and is fined 6d.].

[40^b.] Rowland Sewell, vicar of Brompton in Pickering-lieth, for extortionately taking 20d. from Peter Kirkupp for burying one Alice Pate, no such fee being legally due†; Rich. Pullen late of Cawton, parish of Gillinge, gentⁿ., for retaining &c in his house as his servant one Elizth. Moore, a Recusant, for the space of three months [Penalty £30].

[41.] A like presentment of Tho. Crathorne of Crathorne, Esq., for retaining &c Rebecca Scarth, Alice Scarth, Elizth. Crosley and Elizth. Pilley, Recusants, his servants, for 5 months [Penalty £200]; and again for retaining &c one Bridget Townsend, Recusant, as a sojourner, for 5 months [Penalty £50].

[41^b.] William Bartram of Stokesley, pewterer, for the like, as to Rob. Garbutt, Recusant, sojourning with him for 5 months; and Jane Pudsey of Pickton, widow, for the like as to Simon Rimer, her servant [Penalty of £50 in each case].

[42.] Rich. Best, sen^r., of Appleton Wiske, gentⁿ., for the like as to John Peake and Marg^t. Kay, his servants, and again as to Edw. Bowes, Ann, Mary, and Ellen Bowes, sojourners, all for 5 months [Penalties of £100 and £200 severally].

[42^b.] John Fisher of the same, butcher, for the like as to Marm. Lodge, sojourner; and Ann Ashley of Maltby in Stainton, widow, for Averil Walker her servant [£50 in each case].

[43-44^b.] Will. Gascoigne of Hilton Chapelry, gentⁿ., for Rich. Ingledew, Elizth. Campion, and Alice Popley, his servants [£150]; John Inglebie of Huton Rudby, Esq., for Fr. Ruxbie, Anth. Cragges, Jane Ruxbie and Jane Barcroft [£200]; Tho. Middleton of Middleton on Leaven Chapelry, gentⁿ., for Elizth. Threpley, his servant [£50], and Will. Salvin of Egton Chapelry for Joanna Ducke, his servant [£50]; Tho. Smith of Over Hall near Egton Bridge, yeomⁿ., for Math.

* An interesting additional instance of the use of the word Stead. See above, I., 201, note.

† No explanation is given or suggested as to the reasons which constituted the exaction of a fee in this case "extortionate."

Rawe, his servant [£50], and Will. Radcliffe of Ugthorpe, gentⁿ., for Will. Atkinson, his servant [£50]; Rob. Thwinge of Eskdale-side Chapelry, gentⁿ., for Kath. Jefferson, his servant [£50], and Ja^t. Hodgson of Ruswarpe, yeomⁿ., for Beatrice Bell, his servant.

Most Reverend Father in God, my verie good Lord and brother, I have received from the Kinges Ma^{tie} a letter, the tenour whereof here followeth.

Most Reverend Father in God, right trustie, and right well-beloved Councillour, Wee greete you well. Whereas upon sondrie weightie considerations us speciallie moving, Wee latelie awarded our Commission under our Greate Seale of England for the due and effectuell putting in execution of the severall lawes and Statutes remainynge in force against Popish Recusantes, and did cause our said Commission to be publiquely read in our severall Courtes att Readinge, that all our loving subiectes might take notice of our princely care and speciall charge for the advancement of true Religion and suppressing of superstition and Poperie : Wee have thought fitt, out of the same care, to add a further charge to you and all others having Ecclesiasticall Jurisdiction under Us, that no good meanes be neglected on your part for discoveringe, finding out and apprehending of Jesuites, Seminarie Preistes, and other seducers of our people to the Romish Religion, or for repressing Popish Recusantes and delinquentes of that sorte, against whom you are to proceed by Excommunication and other censures of the Church, not omittinge anie other due and lawfull meanes to bring them forth to publique justice. And as our pleasure is that due and strict proceeding be used against such as are open and professt papistes, of whom our temporall lawes will more easilie take hold,—So Wee do recommend to the vigilant care of you, and the rest of our Cleargie, the repressing of those who, being ill-affected to the true Religion here established, do keep more close and ferret their ill and dangerous affections that waie, and as well by their example as by secrete and underhand sleights and meanes doe much encourage and increase the growth of Poperie and superstition in sundrie partes of this Kingdome : And therefore Wee do not onelie require that none of them may have anie manner of cover, protection, countenance or connivance from you, or anie of the rest, as you tender our Royall Commaundment in that behalfe : But that all possible diligence be used, as well to unmaske the false shadowes and pretenses of those that are obstinate, as by all good meanes to reclaime [reverse of fo.] those who may be possible wonne to conformitie : Letting all men knowe that Wee cannott thinke well of anie that, having place and authoritie in the Church, doe permitt such persons to passe with impunitie, much lesse if they give them anie countenance to the emboldeninge of them or their adherentes. And, because Wee understand that the number of Recusantes is much more increased in some Diocesses then in others, Wee shall impute the same to the negligence of those Bishoppes who have the same meanes of power and restraint, unles they can shewe Us some particuler reason by which that contagion is become greater under them than others, and not by their defaultes. And Wee doe hereby require you to send transcripts of these our letters to all the Bishoppes and Ordinaries within your Province for the present execution of this our generall direction : And also to transmitt the same our letters to the Lord Archbishop of Yorke, that he may take the like course within his charge and jurisdiction. Given under our Signett att our Castle of Windsore the fifteenth daie of Dec^r. in the first yeare of our reigne.

By this you see the Royall and Christian care which his Ma^{tie} hath for the advancinge of true Religion within this Kingdome, and the suppressinge of the contrarie : I doubt not but your Grace will take it into serious consideration, and by

[92.] WHO PRESENT—

Rowland Sewell [See above, p. 270], Clarke, Vicar of Brompton, for extortionately taking from one Walter Hovington, for the burial of Ann Carter, 3s. 4d., when he was not legally entitled to any such fee ;* a Pettithorpe yeoman for an assault &c ; a lab^r. for stealing two wooden rails, value 4d. [Fined 1d.].

[92^b.] A lab^r. for stealing six wooden rails (8d.) ; a man for exercising the trade of a baker and selling many loaves of wheaten bread, never having &c ; two women for stealing a handkercher, a hat and a band.

* This entry, with the former like one on f. 40^b, does not admit of immediate explanation. It is perhaps fairly certain that the payment now called "the burial fee" is not the payment in question here ; it is, on the contrary, a fee variable in amount, 20d. in the former case, 3s. 4d. in the present. It is at least possible that, although the wording in both these Minutes is "pro sepultura" of So-and-so, it may be a mortuary which is really the fee exacted. By the Statute of 21 Henry VIII. c. 6, no mortuary at all was leviable in some cases, and a mortuary of 3s. 4d. was only payable when the estate of the deceased was clearly above ten marks and under £30. A mortuary was only payable where it was so of old custom. In Hook's Church Dictionary in v. "Mortuary," the Statute cited above is cited as 28 Geo. II. c. 6, which in reality is but a rehearsal and re-enactment of the original one of 21 Henry VIII. Dr. Hook further says that mortuaries are not properly due to any ecclesiastical person except from his own parishioners, but, by custom, in some places, they are paid to the incumbents of other parishes when corpses are carried through them. Mr. Sewell may have made an excessive demand, or have sought to establish mortuary fees where none such were legally or of custom due. No entry of burial of the person named in the former Minute exists in the Brompton Parish Register.

* The date of the last Sessions of which any Minutes are recorded is April 4th, 1627. There is therefore a gap of three years and upwards. The pagination of the Volume is quite perfect or continuous, and it must therefore be concluded that the hiatus is not so likely to be due to oversight or negligence as to the absence of duly made copy of the proceedings of the Court in the years that are wanting. No explanation of the omission is forthcoming in the volume itself, and it is to be presumed from the foregoing notices of proceedings against Recusants in the interval that the Sessions continued to be held with regularity.

A man for stealing sheets, bands, and a coif; Tho. Beane for rescue of two cows (£3) seized in execution by Will. Hearon, gentⁿ., Dep.

P., Constable, &c. and of the Minister of the same parish, or any two of them, testifying that the same person hath been punished according to this Act," naming place and date, "and the place whereunto such person is limited to goe, and by what time the said person is limited to passe thither at his peril."

* "GREECE. A step. Harrison, p. 33." Halliwell. "GREES. Steps, stairs. North." The steps up to Whitby Churchyard from the end of Church Street were occasionally called the "grees," or the "Church-grees." The alternative phrase "staithes or grees" in the text, perhaps intimates that the Tollbooth stairs were really of the nature of a ladder such as one may see at the seaward-end of a bathing-machine, or a show-caravan, or the like; and, that is to say, of a fashion strongly reminding one of, if not resembling, the original "staith" or "staithing."

* Halliwell gives "BEND-LEATHER. A leather thong, according to Kennett, MS. Lansd. 1033. Boucher says, 'what is elsewhere called sole-leather,' " with an irrelevant remark about the tanning of bend-leather. And under BEND he says, "Strong ox-leather, tanned with bark and other ingredients, which give it a blue cast. North." (!!) Jamieson, too, under BEND, BEND-LEATHER, only says, "Leather thickened by tanning, for the soles of boots and shoes." As is apparent at first sight, in both these definitions, the element bend is quite lost sight of, and the extract in the text is sufficient to direct attention pointedly enough. What sort of a "piece of leather" a "bend" is will be seen from the following description :—The hide of an ox (or cow) contains five divisions, technically called the 'belly' (one flap on either side), 'cheeks' (the forward part covering the neck), 'shoulder,' and 'butt,' the latter, forming a short parallelogram when cut square from the 'shoulder' and 'belly' flaps, being the thickest part of the hide. This, the 'butt,' being divided into halves by a longitudinal cut along the middle of the back, forms two 'bends,' an explanation which makes the present entry quite clear.

* A custom which could hardly have been called obsolete even at the commencement of the Editor's Incumbency in Cleveland. Nearly all the fixtures of whatever kind, down to the arrangements with the itinerant tailor, shoemaker, saddler, &c, were wont to be made on the Sunday at church, and often notice was given as to the more parochial of them in church. For others, the foot of the Old Cross in the churchyard was the site.

† The original contains the formal and technical terms of the Statute :—the beame or peece of timber "composite factam"; did racke, stretch and draw "in longitudinem et latitudinem; cum diversis feritoriis (anglice battledoors) &c" did sore beate; dress ing the cloth with divers deceptive liquors mixed with chalke and other like matters, &c. The 'battle-door' in this district, up to very recent times, was a very customary implement in the rural laundress' hands, and is described in the Cleavel. Gloss. as a "heavy piece of wood with a handle like that of a cricket bat, at one end, flat on both sides, and four to five inches wide"; also called a 'Bittle.' With this, and another piece of wood, called the pin, the clothes were rolled under pressure, and beaten, so as to produce the effect more easily secured now by aid of the mangle.

[167.] Who convict three of the four prisoners [All three to be whipped &c], acquit the fourth (the gentⁿ. accused of sheepstealing).

ORDERS made, &c.

Graver, for taking excessive moulcture-corne* for grindinge at the water corne-milnes there, by a greater dish† or measure then is warrantable by the lawe &c; [196.] the same man for takinge and destroyinge of the younge frie‡ of Salmons, lamperaines and other fish since the middest of April now instant att the stancke§ or damm of the above-named mill; the above-named Tho. Graver, gentⁿ., for neglecting to scour his water-sewers in the Holme and Carr at Miton, to the great annoyance || of the highway &c.¶

* The fee taken, in kind, by the miller for grinding corn sent to his mill.

† The technical name for the bowl or measure with which the multure was taken—mentioned in many a gibe &c based on the miller's alleged dishonesty. The toll in question seems to have varied considerably in different places in old times, and the miller to have been prohibited from taking his toll by heaped measure.

‡ Worthy of at least passing notice.

§ "STANK. A dam. 'Stagnum, a pound, a stanke, a dam,' MSS. Harl. 2270, f. 181." Halliwell. No doubt a derivative from Stangnum, the mediæval form of Latin stagnum.

|| The verb anoy is used in the same sense as that implied in the use of this noun, a sense that would be better expressed by our word 'nuisance' in its legal or technical sense. Skeat defines "anoy" thus—"to hurt, vex, trouble," and adds, "The account in Diez is quite satisfactory, and generally accepted. It proves that the old Fr. sb. anoi arose from the use of Lat. in odio in certain idiomatic phrases, and that the O. Fr. verb anoier was formed from the sb." "Nuisance" he defines by "a troublesome or annoying thing," quoting Fr. nuisance from Cotgrave, and adding "Fr. nuisant, hurtfull; properly the pres. part. of nuire, to hurt, from Lat. nocere, to hurt." Hurtful, damaging, injurious is certainly the sense involved in "annoyance" in the text.

¶ This Minute is signed Brian Stapylton, and has the following foot-note:—
"This Courte doth impose a Fine of Ten poundes upon the head of Tho. Graver aforesaid, unlesse he open and scour the said water-sewers before the next Sessions to be holden within this Ridinge.

* This term is so unusual, the attempt to explain it must, it is feared, depend rather upon surmise than knowledge. This artificer's companion was a weaver, and a slay is a part of a loom—"that part of the loom that is pulled among the threads. North," says Halliwell; and further—"slay, that part of the loom with which the work is closed. The slay of a weaver's loome, having teeth like acombe, Nomenclator, p. 253." Whatever else may, or may not be, apparent from these definitions and extracts. it is quite clear that a slay was a part of a loom, and the 'slay-wright,' which would be sounded 'slea-' or 'sleea-wright' in this district, may have been the artificer employed in its manufacture † "LEA. The seventh part of a hank or skein of worsted. North." Halliwell. The extract in the text shows that the term was not limited in application to woollen yarn only.

‡ The last folio is numbered 197, and the entry at the foot of fo. 197^b runs on quite correctly to the fo. numbered 200, the catchword vi being duly repeated in the "vi et armis" of 200^a. "Three leaves forgott" is the note at foot of 197^b.

ORDERS made &c.

According to an Order from the Judges of Assizes on a petition preferred to them by Rob. Rither, Esq., concerning the present assessing &c of money for the repair of the Gaol at York Castle, and for the building of a Ho. of Corrⁿ. within the said Castle or near it, for setting the poor prisoners on work to keep them from idleness, of which Ho. of Corr. the Gaoler is to be the Governor, according to certain late Orders from his Ma^{ty}, for which he craves some yearly allowance for his paines :—We have considered the same Order and conceive that a general conference of all the Justices will best answer for the satisfying of the same : Yet for the present the Court thinks it fitting that a Ho. of Corr. shall be erected with all convenient speed in or near the said Castle, and the Gaoler to be Governor thereof, and that such sums of money shall be levied as shall proportionably fall due by them to be paid, both for the building and for the Governor, as shall be thought fitting when they shall understand what their rate and proportion wilbe. But as to any sum or sums to be levied for the repair of the Castle this Court conceives not that they are chargeable therewith, but therein desires a general conference with the rest of the Justices of the County before they yelde anie such monies be paid, and to doe therein what shalbe thought legally fitting for them to do.

[210^b.] A warrant &c against Rob. Turner, one of the H. C^s. of Hang West, to apprehend him and bring him to be bound &c to appear &c, and especially to make a true acc^t. of all moneys received by him in virtue of his office ; the inhab^{ts}. of Wiggington to lie open their waie by them now stopped and taken upp in the Forest of Galtresse leading from Sutton to York, and that it shall lie open until such time as they shall appear in this Courte and put in their plea of traverse, and the matter be decided here, and in default a fine of £40 &c ; in re a poor cripple brought here from Brompton by Allerton, 10s. to be allowed him, and he is to be conveyed from Constable to Constable the next waie to Richmond where he was last settled and, as is supposed, born, &c ; all bridges and highwaies in Richm^{re}. and other parts of this Countie that are within the roade where his Ma^{ty} is to passe on

Addison and Lawr. Kent, both of London, find the same inadequate to finish the work—£5 more allowed; a fine of £40 imposed on the inhab^{rs}. of Sinderby unless the highway be amended at a place called Bonn Loaninge before 31st May next; a warrant &c against the Lees of Danby and Smith of Westerdale presented above; £25 to be estreated &c for Thornton bridge, to be paid over to Brian Stapylton and Rob. Dringe, Surv^{rs}.; the rating on account of L. S. and Hosp^{ls}. to be reduced one-half until the Court orders otherwise; Ju^s. Mitchell of Borroby to have 30s. towards his charges in following his petition, so as the petitioner be no further troublesome to this Court; whereas heavy arrears, amounting to not less than £500, are found to exist in respect of moneys heretofore estreated &c for building and repair of bridges and divers other uses for the country's service, the particulars of which are found in the books and records of this Court—[212.] It is thought fitting that such sums should not be utterly lost, but some course be now taken for their recovery: An abstract to be forthwith made of all such moneys before the next Sessions, and in the same to be set down the names of the heirs, executors or administrators of the persons who shall be found to be so in arrear, and, this done, we are to accord amongst ourselves what Justices of this Commission shalbe used as Agents in trust for the recovery of the said arrears &c. and to consider in what manner it may be legal to proceed, and, if thought necessary, to take the advice of the Judges of this circuit; 20s. allowed to a female who petitions on the ground that she had been robbed in Fleetham Feild near Catterick; Sam. * To "keep a matter or thing dark" is to keep it secret, concealed : "to keep a person dark" is an unusual mode of expression. It may be observed that Halliwell gives the sense "to lie hid" as one meaning of TO DARK in use by "old writers." Pr. Pm. has "DARYN, prively to be hidde—Lateo, latito." To "dark in a den" = lie hid, or keep perdu, in a den, occurs four times in Will. of Palerne [Early E. Text Series, pp. 7, 8, 64, 85]. The sense of our phrase is clearly to keep the distraught person in retirement, away from places of public resort or contact with other persons.

[229^b.] WHO PRESENT—

John Purden of Haxby for that, having been bound, himself in £20 and with two good sureties in £10 each, to appear &c and to keep the peace &c, he committed an assault &c on one John Wate &c; a Wreton tanner for an assault &c; [230.] a Bowes lab^r. for stealing a shirt; Howe bridge over the Rye as in great ruin &c; [230^b–234.] two men for stealing a peck of rye (3d.). Seventeen alehouse-keepers out of Bulmer Wap^r., nineteen out of Birdforth, thirteen out of Ridall, seventy-four out of Langbargh;* thirteen out of Gisbrough;† four out of Pickering-lieth; two out of Whitby Strand; twenty out of Allertonshire; thirteen out of Hang East; twelve out of Halikeld; thirty-two out of Gilling East; fifty-two out of Gilling West; twenty-seven‡ out of Hang West, all for keeping common tipling-houses without &c; the inhab^{ts}. of Kirkleavington for not repairing and setting up of a yate called Leavington Moor Yate lying betwixt the Lordships of Crathorne and Kirkleavington, whereby there is much corn destroyeed and waisted in the towne feildes of Crathorne; [234^b.] Rob. Barker, Constable of Maske, for not paying over his cessments for bridges &c; a Sowerby (near Thirsk) yeomⁿ., for not paying his ass^{ts}.

* One of these, Raph Coniers of Stokesley, is described as a gentleman; and among other places specified is Newton subter Strata, which, from its being grouped with Sandsend, Ugthorpe, and Hutton Mulgrave, must be the township better known as Newton Mulgrave. Whether there may be matter for historical inference in this as to vicinity to an old Roman lateral means of communication or not cannot at present be decided. That there must have been such lateral means of communication between the post of outlook near Dunsley, indicated by the Roman Road through Hazel Head and Grosmont, and the similar outpost over against Saltburn, is of course obvious, and the part of it near Easington is probably pointed out by the cross-road there called “Street.”

‡ One among these again is distinguished as Clericus.
